NOTES

USSR-CUBA: The Soviet submarine tender and the F-class diesel submarine that left the Caribbean on 3 January currently are northeast of Puerto Rico and appear to be headed toward European waters. The guided-missile frigate and naval oiler that left the Cuban port of Cienfuegos two weeks ago are north of the Azores and also appear to be headed home. The only Soviet naval ship still in the Cuban area is the rescue tug which arrived in September with the submarine tender and several other ships. This tug and the two nuclear submarine support barges are still in Cienfuegos.
